

Letter from Mabel Hubbard Bell to Alexander Graham Bell, October 3, 1913, with transcript

Letter from Mrs. Alexander Graham Bell to Dr. Alexander Graham Bell. Hotel Seville, New York, N.Y. October 3, (1913.) My darling:

If you were only feeling your ownself and had stopped coughing how I should be enjoying this quiet ride through the autumn country. I did hate to leave you and I'll hurry right back. I don't like your being alone in that big house. I haven't even the comfort of feeling that it was really necessary for me to come. I did when I started, but Daisy seems to be taking hold so vigorously that I doubt now.

We are getting on all right. The nurses have the children and I have nothing to do but enjoy myself.

Please show you really love me by taking extra care of yourself and take all the cod liver oil and keep warm.

I love you.

Mabel.
